

Kurtis Pipkin

Oregon Institute of Technology Civil Engineering Scholarship

My name is Kurtis Pipkin. I am currently a student majoring in civil engineering at Oregon Institute of Technology.

I am originally from the small town of Banks, which is about half an hour west of Portland. I am involved in CECOP, an internship program at Oregon Tech. Through this program, I work for City of Eugene, Public Works Engineering as an engineering assistant for my first internship. I will go on a second internship and finish my senior year at Oregon Tech.

Outside of school, I like to go camping, hiking, mountain biking, snowboarding in the winter, and most all other outside activities. After I graduate, I plan on staying in Oregon and finding a job working for the public sector, focusing on either water resource or structural engineering. Soon thereafter, I will begin looking into continuing my education with a Master's degree in one of those two career paths.
